"Here we are at the zoo,"
said Janet.

"We can buy our tickets
at this booth." said Fred.
"This will be fun for us. The animals have lots of room
to play in this zoo."

"See the seals swimming in that pool," said Janet.
"They do tricks, too. See that one up on the stool.
He has a big, yellow balloon.
And look at that one on the rock with a boot !"

"They are funny," said
Fred.

"See the seal tooting a horn,"
said Fred.

"Look at the one jumping
in and out of a hoop," said Janet. "And there are the polar bears, they like the cool water in their pool, too!"

"They are funny clowns," said Fred. "They like to fool each other. See them stoop down and then jump in the cool water. Look out, Janet! They will fool you, too!"

Splash!

"Look at that poor tiger!" said Fred. "He seems to be in a sad mood!"

"Maybe he wants some food," said Janet. "It is almost noon. Maybe the zoo keeper will feed him soon."

"What a goofy monkey!" said Janet. "He can scoot up to the roof!"

"Here comes the zoo keeper with some food," said Fred.

The man fed the monkey, then he said, "Did you ever see a monkey eat with a spoon?"

"No," said Fred.

Let's go into
the Children's Zoo
now," said Janet.

"Look! That monkey is pointing the way with his spoon," giggled Fred.

Janet and Fred went into
the Children's Zoo.

"There is the cow that jumped over the moon,"
said Fred.

"Here are the three mice," said Janet.
"Their home is a boot !"

"That is funny,"
said Fred.

"And here is Mother Goose. Do you think she will tell us a story?" asked Janet.

What a happy day Fred and Janet had ! A day at the zoo is fun !

Tom Booth is six years old.
He is in the first grade at school.

One morning, Mrs. Booth went up to Tom's bedroom and said, "Get up, Tom! You must go to school soon. You have to get to the bus stop on time."

Tom was in a fine mood. He jumped up from bed.

"O.K., Mom, I'm up!" he said. Then he got dressed for school.

Tom ran to his mom in the kitchen. She had fixed his food. Tom sat in the booth to eat it. He had one egg and some toast. He smoothed butter on his toast.

Next, Tom ran out to the back yard to feed his pet goose. He gave her some cool water.

Tom is smart. He can tie his own shoe. That looks hard! I'm glad I'm just a goose!

Tom had to stoop to tie his shoe. The lace had come loose. He made a big loop. Tom did it! Tom is a big boy!

Tom had to rush to get to the bus. Poor Tom must run! Here comes the bus!

Just as the bus started, a puppy ran into the street. He ran in front of the school bus!

"Toot, toot," went the horn of the bus. The puppy ran away.

When Tom got to school he had the best time! He sat on a stool to play Shoot the Balloons. The boys and girls in his class clapped when Tom said, "oo!" You cannot fool Tom! Tom is smart.

At noon the boys and girls had lunch. They ate in the lunch room at school.

Tom ate a big lunch. He drank some cool milk, too. Then he bit into his apple.

"oo!" said Tom. "I have a loose tooth!"

Tom looked at his apple.
What was that? It was his big, loose tooth! It had stuck in his apple!

"Come see!" said Tom.
"My loose tooth came out! I did not use a tool!
My apple got it out for me!"

The boys and girls looked at Tom's tooth. It had a big root on it.

Dick likes to fool and joke. He said to Tom, "Why don't you glue it back in with toothpaste !"

The kids giggled.

When Tom got home, he ran to tell his mom.

"See my tooth !" he said.

"Fine !" said Mrs. Booth. "The tooth fairy will have to come to see you soon."

When Tom went to bed, he put the tooth under his pillow.

In the morning Tom yelled,
"See what the tooth fairy left for me! A dime! I am in a fine mood! I will tell the kids at school!"

"I hope
Miss Fix will choose you first!" said
Mom. "Show
and Tell will be fun for you today!"

"Yes, it will!"
said Tom with a grin.

Miss Brooks said, "It is time to choose. You may choose whatever you want to do in school."

The kids clapped. They liked Choosing Time at school.

Steve and Ann picked a game. The game has a brook and a pond. It has five fish and two poles with hooks. The game is "Hook-a-Fish." Steve and Ann have fun with it.

Jenny and Sally and Brad choose the big wood blocks. Jenny stood on the B block. Sally stood on the S block. Brad stood on the V block. He stood on his left foot. Now he will hop to the rug.

"May we paint?" asked Paul.

"Yes, if you choose to," said Miss Brooks. "You may choose to do whatever you wish."

Then Paul and Judy and Janet started to paint.

Choosing Time at school is fun.

The U.S.A. is our nation.

In the U.S.A. we choose our leaders. We choose them on Election Day. We go to vote.

Fellow Americans!
I speak with you today
about the condition of our nation.

Our leaders speak on T.V. stations. They give us information. They tell us about the condition of our nation. They tell us what they will do. They ask us to vote for them.

The leaders tell us we must take action to stop pollution.

The laws of our nation must be upheld
if we want to keep our freedoms.

Our leaders tell us to pay attention to the laws of our nation.

The laws of the U.S.A. are in a list. The list of laws is called the Constitution.

The U.S. Constitution was a new invention. It was made by the leaders who started our nation.

The laws of the Constitution give us freedom in the U.S.A.

On the Fourth of July we have a celebration. It is during summer vacation. It is the birthday celebration of our nation. Happy Birthday, U.S.A.!

You may have a question about the U.S.A. You can look in a history book, or you may look in a big dictionary. We are proud of our nation, our Constitution and our freedoms.

It was the day of the neighborhood costume party. Mark was dressed up as a knight. His sister, Maria, helped Mark get dressed. The sun was bright in the sky. Mark will help Maria. He will go get the party food from the neighbors.

Maria will decorate the party cake. She has candles to make the room pretty and bright.

It is time for Mark to go get the party food. Maria gave him a bag to put it in.

"Hold on to your bag, Big Knight," said Maria.

Mark waved to her and went down the street. He held the bag in his hand.

"It is tight in my hand," he yelled back to Maria.

Soon Mark met Mrs. Peck's daughter, Jenny. She was dressed up as a little Dutch girl.

"Hello, Mark," said Mr. Peck's daughter.

"Hello, Jenny," said Mark. "Do you want to help me? I am going to pick up the party food from our neighbors."

"Yes," said Jenny.

Mark and Jenny went along in the neighborhood. They went to Mr. Jones' house.

"Do you have a treat for the neighborhood costume party?" asked Mark.

"Here you are," said Mr. Jones. "I brought home some doughnuts for the party."

"Thank you, Mr. Jones," said Mark and Jenny.

"Your mothers taught you good manners," said Mr.
Jones. "You are welcome to the doughnuts. What nice costumes you have! The neighborhood party will be fun."

Next they saw a frightening sight . . . two cats
in a fight!

"What a fright," said Jenny. "I'm glad you are with me, Big Knight!"

Then they went to Dr. Mink's house, number eighteen, Straight Street.

"Hello Mark. Hello Jenny," said Dr. Mink. "Here is the popcorn I bought for your party. I thought you might like it. And here are some apples too."

"Mmm! Thank you, Dr. Mink," said Jenny and Mark. "We have such good treats. You are a nice neighbor!"

"I am glad your mom taught you such good manners," said Dr. Mink. "Have fun at the costume party."

"Well, our bags weigh a ton! That's enough for us! Good-bye, Dr. Mink."

"Our neighbors are nice, and our costume party will be fun! Let's hurry to it!"

One day King Tweek's daughter, Ann, was riding in a sleigh through her neighborhood.

All at once...

a naughty dragon jumped out at her!

He was eighty feet long!

He could cough a big bright fire!

Poor Princess Ann got a terrible fright! Her horses neighed and ran back to the palace.

King Tweek called for a tough knight to come and fight the dragon.

The dragon ought to be taught a lesson!
It was a mighty battle!

The knight and the dragon fought for eight days!

The knight caught the dragon by the tail. He banged the dragon on a big rough rock!

the town. He went to live in the hills.

Princess Ann and the tough knight had a big wedding. They bought a house in a pretty neighborhood. They were very happy.
